

Expression of Interest: EngageTech Forums 2018

engagetech is an engagement technology showcase and workshop where government can learn about and share their public engagement challenges with peers and industry experts. Not a conference, nor a sales pitch, but an event where participants expect to network and discuss the issues surrounding public engagement.

What is it?

The EngageTech forums are designed to be a collaborative event facilitating intimate engagement between public (technology users) and private (technology providers) to come together in a “non-sales” environment to learn about:

- What tools are currently available (for public engagement)
- Not only what tools can do, but how they can be used
- Trends in technology – innovation roadmaps for technology

Private sector participants will learn more about the issues that public sector engagement teams have generating public involvement. The public sector can engage industry experts and their public-sector peers regarding what is possible and what will be possible from a technology standpoint, to help them plan for the future.

The EngageTech forums have a format that is tested and understood to make public sector participants feel comfortable in a collegiate learning environment where they can discuss methods of public involvement with experts and peers (not salespeople).

Who is it for?

The engagetech forum is held on a single day and is designed for public service participants 100-150 (depending on venue) per event, including:

- Policy advisors and planners
- Community engagement and development specialists
- Cross Government, stakeholder engagement & program delivery specialists
- ICT innovators and enterprise architects

Listen Understand Consider

- Communications and public relations teams supporting the roles listed above

We will work with you to ensure that a broad range of public sector stakeholders are represented at these events.

Where and when will it be held?

An event will be held in Wellington at the University of Victoria on the 28th August, 2018.

This event will be opened by the NZ Minister for Innovation Open Government and Digital Transformation. The event is being co-hosted by the School of Business and Government at the University of Victoria and will be promoted and supported by the NZ Government Online Engagement Service team.

A second event will be delivered in Sydney as part of Smart Cities Week in October, on Monday the 29th October or Thursday 1st November. The locations for this event are being negotiated with our partners, the Smart Cities Council, a University and urban LGA.

What happens?

A five-staged event shaped around a spectrum of engagement purposes/business problems that technology can help support:

1. Expo – technology showcase based on the EngageTech spectrum
2. Presentation / panel discussion
3. Workshop – world café style table discussions based on spectrum – sponsors will not be invited to participate but will be able to walk around the room to listen to discussions
4. Speed networking – meet the technology providers and people who have used their products
5. Debrief – a discussion about lessons learned throughout the day and experiences using EngageTech to date
